

What is AUTISM?

Autism affects the way a person's brain and body
works

Autism is not a disease and it is not contagious

Someone with autism may find it hard to:

Play with friends

Follow instructions

How do kids with autism act?

Children with autism may act differently and that is ok. We are all different in our own way!

Children with autism are good at many things. Some examples are math, spelling, art and technology.

Math

Art

Computers

Check out this video to see how AMAZING things happen when you have a friend with autism.

Watch now

How do kids with autism act?

Sometimes it may be hard to talk to others or express their feelings

They may make sounds or gestures or not talk at all

Sometimes they may stim like spin, flap or fidget

They may not look at you, but can still understand what you are saying

They may use pictures or schedules and prefer routines

The 7 Senses

Someone with autism may be sensitive to:

Touch

Taste

Smell

Hearing

Sight

However, are you aware there are 2 more?

Proprioceptive:
understanding where your body is in space

Vestibular:
understanding your sense of balance

Proprioceptive

Vestibular

Did you know?

Some individuals may have hypersensitivity (over-sensitive) and may require special tools such as headphones, sunglasses, gloves, etc.

Or some individuals may have hyposensitivity and be more of a sensory seeker. These individuals may like items such as fidgets, sand & water tables, loud music, etc.

Now consider for a moment
if your teacher only asked you questions pertaining to the image faces on the right?

How well would you do?

Some individuals see the faces, and some see a cup. Each person's perception is different.

How can I be a good friend to someone with autism?

1 Accept each other's differences

2 Talk in small sentences with simple words.
Use simple gestures like pointing or waving.

3 Do activities with them that interest them
and invite them to join you too!

How can I be KIND to friends with autism?

BE

Be patient

GIVE

Give your friend extra time to answer questions or complete an activity

INVITE

Invite your friend to play with you

TEACH

Teach your friend something new by showing them how to do it

ASK

Ask your teacher questions about your friend with autism

HELP

Help other kids learn about autism

APRIL IS AUTISM ACCEPTANCE MONTH

Together we can make our schools a better place for everyone!

